Proven Extra Potential (PEP)

At Caedmon College Whitby, we believe in excellence and that all students are entitled to an education that will enable them to develop their full potential. We wish to support our most able and talented students in finding appropriate challenge in our learning environment and we will provide opportunities to identify and nurture these students.

At this College, we will identify able and talented students in two groups as follows.

Academic PEP students

Students that have a minimum expected grade of 7 or higher in English and Maths will be identified by our PEP co-ordinator, although parents and students will not be informed of this. The PEP Co-ordinator will monitor provision for these students and scrutinise their progress.

Students who have entered the Sixth Form with target grades of AAB or better will form the Key Stage 5 list. Following ongoing teaching, learning and assessments, teachers are invited to recommend that students on the list may be added or removed.

Opportunities available to these students are offered widely.

Specific talents PEP students

Our definition: students who have been identified by their subject teachers, coaches or parents as having a particular aptitude in one area, which could be the arts, sport, leadership skills or other interests which may take up a lot of time for the students. The list should be small and easily manageable. The College will endeavour to support such activities through leave of absence, curriculum changes and other available means. The PEP Co-ordinator will share this information with staff and the list will contain details of why a student has been identified and what interventions or enrichment have been offered.
